

30 January 1974

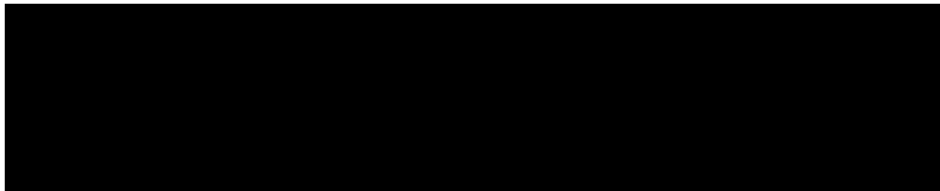

MEMORANDUM FOR: Mr. Walter Elder
Chief, CIA History Staff

SUBJECT : Component Histories in the Directorate of Intelligence

REFERENCE : Your Memorandum of 24 January 1974

1. Following is a summary of the status of work on component histories currently underway in the Directorate of Intelligence:

STATSPEC

CRS

A draft of the history of CRS was submitted to the History Staff for review in May 1973. To date the draft has not been returned to CRS, and further action will await completion of the review by History Staff.

OBTI

This Office is tentatively considering some further work on the overview history of the Cartography Division and on the monograph on Automation in Cartography. The results would be intended primarily for internal OBTI purposes, however, and would not require review and "polishing" support from the History Staff since "finished" publication is not contemplated. Copies could, of course, be made available to the Staff for retention as HS/HC documents.

a) The major narrative history of OCI is in final typing for publication. Three volumes of the six-volume work have been typed, and typing is now underway on the fourth volume. The entire task should be completed by May 1974.

b) The historical monograph on OCI Support for the White House has been completed in draft form and has been submitted to D/OCI for review of the draft. Following his approval it will be submitted to History Staff for review for publication. Assuming no unanticipated delays, completion by 30 June 1974 appears feasible.

OER

a) Volume II of [REDACTED] three-volume history of economic intelligence research in ORR and OER is now ready for final typing. Completion by the end of April is estimated. A draft of Volume III was submitted on 28 January 1974 for review by the History Staff. Assuming no unanticipated delays, Volume III should be completed by 30 June 1974.

b) The history of the Economic Intelligence Committee should be completed in draft form and ready for History Staff review by early March. This should permit completion of the review process before the end of June 1974, although final typing for publication may extend into FY 1975.

c) OER is reactivating its revision of the earlier unsatisfactory draft history of CIA Support for the Economic Defense Program, and expects to have a revised draft ready for History Staff review by the end of April 1974. This should permit completion of the review process before the end of June 1974, although final typing for publication may extend into FY 1975.

OSR

The draft history of Development of Strategic Research at CIA has been revised by OSR following review by the History Staff. The revised draft is now being reviewed by the DDI, who was personally much involved in the events recorded. Following his approval it will be ready for final typing. Completion by the end of June 1974 appears feasible.

Approved For Release 2001/08/14 : CIA-RDP79T01762A001100040002-1

O/DDI

A draft history of the O/DDI covering the period through the tenure of DDI Ray Cline has been completed and submitted to the ADDI for review. Following his approval it will be forwarded for History Staff review. In the meantime, work is proceeding on drafting the final chapter, which covers the tenure of DDI R. J. Smith. It should be feasible to complete the review process for the entire history by the end of June 1974, but final typing for publication will almost certainly extend well into FY 1975.

2. I shall be pleased to discuss these items further at your convenience.

Dick,

Walt Elder is ending the History Staff's responsibility for, and involvement in, the component history program by 30 June.

Currently, Admin has Volume V of the OCI history for typing. After that there is one volume to go.

The small corrections in all the volumes will be made when you have finished with them.

WHAT SHOULD BE PRESERVED FOR HISTORY?

Nearly everything definitive of either a production or an administrative nature should be saved, and organized in appropriate files. Definitive means things actually done, and done officially-- administrative regulations, announcements, and finished production of all types (including briefings where these were written down, even as notes).

Then, anything important but non-definitive (perhaps we could use the word informal) should be saved, again of both administrative and substantive kind. The judgment of importance is unavoidably subjective and practice will certainly not be uniform. But what winds up in the Records Center as our history is going to be vastly different if people are aware that important informal papers should be saved. Our records now appear to be very weak in the informal category, and consequently much of our history is lost (except as it exists in people's memories). Definitive papers provide very little regarding reasons, concepts, philosophy, policies, and appraisals--rich material which the historian must have for understanding. Such material would show<sup>up</sup> in reports of conferences or in memos of individuals.

Important substantive papers that were never "published" should be on record. Possibly they were not published because someone disagreed with them, but the office history should not be blind to such episodes. Indeed, history becomes pretty dull stuff if we write it as though everyone always saw things just the same way.

Another category worth preserving is that of memos on the working of the office, pointing to problems and making suggestions.

In general, we can be guided in the selection of records to be preserved by the fact that the history of the office is the total story of what its members did and thought--on the job.

KEY DATES IN THE ORGANIZATION OF OCI

1950

2 October. William H. Jackson took office as Deputy Director, CIA.

7 October. Lt. Gen. Walter B. Smith took office as DCI.

10 October. ORE plan called for creating a current intelligence division in ONE.

26 October. DCI presented his reorganization plan to the IAC.

7 November. Reorganization chart showed the ORE plan of 10 October.

13 November. Formation of ONE announced.

15 November. Langer begins to organize a current intelligence staff.

1 December. Smith abolished the Advisory Council and set up OSS.

13 December. [REDACTED] (AD/OSS) says it's envisaged that General Division will come to OSS.

18 December. Smith agreed to a strengthened Indicator Group.

19 December. [REDACTED] endorsed memo to transfer General Div. to OSS. Also evidently agreed in a meeting to give current intelligence to OSS and transfer Watch personnel to it.

21 December. Jackson authorized something. Records fragmentary, but probably it was authorization for OSS to take over current intelligence, and the analysts from ORE's regional divisions.

1951

4 January. [REDACTED] appointed AD/SS.

15 January. OSS changed to OCI.
